What We Offer

We are a community of professional women in science and technology that support each other in our ability to thrive and advance in our careers and lives. This includes women just entering their STEM careers in industry, government, the military, and academia, those looking to advance in their careers, and senior executives. Our network in support of women in STEM includes those individuals who, and organizations that, support and ally with our purpose.

STEM-UP Network provides professional women in STEM with tried and true real-world strategies and relationships that support our ability to flourish, prosper and advance personally and in our careers.

Our growing network provides access to leadership development and mentoring programs, networking events and other opportunities for collaboration and connection at the local and regional level – all designed to support and develop current and future women leaders in STEM.
